PROJECTS

- Weighted k-Centers, Optimal Facility Location Using 2010 US Census data for the state of Massachusetts, we augmented Metric k-centers and Lloyd's algorithms to optimally place a constrained number of distribution centers. <https://github.com/twkillian/am205-project>
- Stochastic Inference of Boston Bike-share Data With data from the Hubway bike-sharing system from the 2012 season, we performed second order analyses to develop intuition about how to augment or improve the system. <https://github.com/am207Hubway>
- Two-Stage Supermodular Minimization for Dictionary Selection Developed preliminary approaches to solve dictionary selection under a supermodular assumption.
- Automated Anomaly Detection in Surveillance Video Attempted to provide real-time processing and identification of anomalous behavior in surveillance video, utilizing contemporary methods of parallel computing. <https://github.com/cs205-surveillance>
- Quantitative Evaluation of Player Performance Evaluated the transfer market of international soccer and the perception of player value. Developed a merit-based scoring metric, used to measure player impact in matches they participated in. This impact score was used to infer what value they would have on the transfer market. <https://github.com/cs109-FIFA>
